Soaring Metal Prices May Delay Energy Transition

NOVEMBER 10, 2021

Clean energy needs may cause years of high prices for copper, nickel, cobalt, and lithium under a net-zero emissions scenario.

The world's historic pivot toward curbing carbon emissions is likely to spur unprecedented demand for some of the most crucial metals used to generate and store renewable energy in a net-zero emissions by 2050 scenario.

Prices could reach historical peaks

Modes of living (Maldonado Ruiz 2009- Escuela de Gobierno de Pueblos y Nacionalidades)

CAPITALISM

- Property is privately held, and capital privately accumulated
- Individual subject (mainly economic rights – Homo economicus)
- Seeks individual economic benefit
- Accumulation
- Market freedom
- Obsession for economic growth
- Private business predominance
- Natural “resources” depredation
- Production towards satisfying needs (wants) created by companies (new illnesses)
- Based on market rules: offer and demand

KICHWA: SUMAK KAWSAY

- Property is held collectively or in common, familiar property (ancient commons)
- Collective subject (collective rights)
- Seeks community well-being
- Institutions of social reciprocity / redistribution (nature)
- Market: space of exchange of surplus and to supplement needs (trueque).
- Human being as a part of nature (sacred reciprocity)
- Based on needs satisfaction and establishment of alliances to guarantee that all community members have equitable access to resources

What the indigenous peasant organization and the organization of TBA contribute is a resistance to modernity "as a civilizing tendency endowed with a new unitary principle of coherence or structuring for civilized social life and for the world corresponding to that life", a resistance to the obsolescence of the ancestral (Echeverría 2009, 7-8).

This resistance is based on the ability to approach nature in sacred and not purely profane mathematized terms, giving meaning to the construction of other modes of health.

Declaración de Moisés Gandhi (EZLN)

SALUD ES VIVIR SIN HUMILLACIÓN.

Salud es el bienestar del pueblo y del individuo, que contenga la capacidad y motivación para todo tipo de actividad sea social o política. Salud es vivir sin humillación, podernos desarrollar como mujeres y hombres; es poder luchar por una patria nueva donde los pobres y particularmente l@s indígenas se puedan determinar de manera autónoma, y donde la pobreza, la militarización y la guerra destruyen la Salud.

- Este bienestar abarca lo físico y lo mental. Esto significa tener buena alimentación, buena vivienda, mantener la higiene en las casas, tener agua potable, luz y servicios médicos; que no haya contaminación por agroquímicos en la tierra y al medio ambiente ya que perjudica a la población, tener tierra donde trabajar, tener educación, una buena organización, tener libertad, respeto a la cultura y justicia.
